BODY OF POISONED GIRL EXHUMED

State in Search of Bottle That Contained Poison.

WILL HOLD SECOND AUTOPSY

Prosecutor Declares That Effort Will Be Made to Trace Every Particle of Potassium Cyanide Alleged to Have Been Purchased by Rev. Richeson—if Bottle Is Found in Bathrobe Pocket Case Will Look Bad for Accused Preacher.

Boston, Oct. 25.—The body of Miss Avis Linnell was taken from resting place in Oak Grove cemetery, Hyannis, and brought to this city, the removal being made upon orders from District Attorney Pelletier. The ostensible purpose in conveying the body back to Boston was for the purpose of examining the interior of the casket to ascertain if there is a poison container in either pocket of a bathrobe which is beneath the body and which the young woman had over her the night she took the fatal draught.

The finding of a bottle which Druggist Hahn of Newton Center can recognize as the one into which he placed the poison sold to the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, charged with Miss Linnell's murder, is now regarded as important, particularly if it can be shown to have once been in the possession of the young woman, and would surely seal the fate of the clergyman.

Real Object Surmised.

But there is not the slightest doubt that there is another object in bringing the body to Boston. If the authorities only wished to search the bathrobe for a small bottle they could have done it by simply opening the casket beside the grave. Instead, the coffin was kept closed and brought to this city under guard of Captain A. S. Armstrong of police headquarters. It was taken to the city hospital morgue and placed unopened in a freezing compartment. It is pretty well understood that another and more complete autopsy is to be performed.

"We wish to account for every atom of the cyanide which we believe Richeson gave the girl," said Deputy Superintendent of Police Watts in discussing the exhumation. "Further than this I can say nothing at the present time."

Philip R. Dunbar, of counsel for the accused clergyman, is reported to have made application for a writ from a judge of the superior criminal court ordering the police to permit the defense to have their own medical expert present when the autopsy is performed. The judge, it is said, refused to grant the writ.

Thomas Varland Richeson, who is here from Virginia to take up the battle for the life and liberty of his son, declared that he would fight to the last drop of his blood for "my boy"; if he is innocent of the infamous crime charged against him, but if he is guilty the law should take its course.

McNamara Defense Dissatisfied With Judge Bordwell's Ruling.
Los Angeles, Oct. 25.—Despite the ruling of Judge Bordwell that the defense of an opinion that the Los Angeles Times was destroyed by dynamite is not sufficient to disqualify a juror from the McNamara case, the defense prepared to reframe the issue to secure at least a second ruling on the subject. After examining the exact text of Judge Bordwell's ruling, the defense's attorneys agreed to try to qualify the first venireman who intimates that he leans toward the gas theory, thus compelling a positive ruling on this point.

Mankato, Minn., Oct. 25.—President Taft was the guest of the Elks in Mankato, who invited to their board representatives of every shade of Republicanism and Democracy in the state. There was Former Congressman James E. Tawney, Governor Eberhardt of Minnesota, who progresses in the middle of the road; Senator Knute Nelson, who has so assiduously cultivated an independent and nearinsurgent reputation in the senate, and Senator Moses Clapp, who drives in the La Follette wagon. There were Harmon Democrats, Clark Democrats and Wilson Democrats. The president sat fairly in the political middle of this spectrum.

It was raining hard when the president arrived at Mankato, an hour behind his schedule time. The local committee was afraid that the rain and the lateness of the president might have driven away the crowds.

Wright Proves Worth of His New Glider Aeroplane.

Kill Devil Hill, N. C., Oct. 25.—In a 50-mile gale Orville Wright went aloft and remained virtually stationary in his glider, with which he is conducting experiments in aerial stability. He was up nine minutes and 45 seconds and maintained an altitude of approximately 150 feet. The record-breaking flight was the seventeenth in a series. The first glide lasted only 54 seconds, each lengthening until the final one.

The success of the experiment is understood here to mark a long step forward in the science of aviation, and to point the way toward solving the problem of automatically preserving the equilibrium of heavier-than-air machines.

Indianapolis Physician Found With Throat Cut.

Indianapolis, Oct. 25.—The entire detective force of this city is engaged in an effort to solve a murder mystery which developed in the Delaware, one of the fashionable flats of the city. With her throat cut and the bedclothing disarranged, and surrounded by other evidences of a struggle, the body of Dr. Helene Knabe, 35, a well-known practicing physician, was found in her apartments.

Three negroes who occupied apartments in the basement of the flat, just under Dr. Knabe's apartment, have been arrested. They are Jefferson Haynes, custodian of the flat; Eva Haynes, his daughter, and Mrs. Fannie Winston, Haynes' housekeeper, who assists him in the care of the flat. Suspicion was first directed from the laboratory in the physician's apartment into the basement to the boiler room, which is connected with Haynes' sleeping room.

Haynes volunteered a statement that he heard a sound of some one falling sometime during the night, and also heard a scream, but supposed the doctor had a patient and did not investigate. The suspects were later released.

NEED ONLY ONE MORE VICTORY

McGraw's Star Twirler Makes Splendid First-Inning Record, but Mackmen Soon Take His Measure and Pile Up Hits and Runs—Bender Makes Poor Start, but Is There at Finish—Players to Divide $127,910.61 Among Themselves.

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—Connie Mack's sluggers gave Christy Mathewson something to think about in the fourth game of the world's championship series, and as a result of their incessant pounding of the ball they were enabled to win their third victory by a score of 4 to 2. Another triumph by the Philadelphians, therefore, will place them upon the baseball pinnacle, and they will make a desperate fight to achieve that honor at the Polo grounds today.

After one week of idleness the teams hooked up before another crowd that taxed the capacity of the park to the extent of 24,355 paid admissions. A large majority of the spectators went wild over the victory of the Athletics, which was accomplished by plucky up-hill playing after the New Yorkers had started off with a lead of two runs. These runs were scored in the first inning, when Devore singled. Doyle lined out a three-bagger and Snodgrass boomed a sacrifice. Solving the Indian Bender with such unexpected success the Giants and their followers hoped for victory, inasmuch as the mighty Mathewson announced before the game that he was feeling in tiptop condition. He struck out three men in the first inning and it looked as if he was in such shape to down Mack's big hitters to inevitable defeat. But soon the Athletics began to lace the ball with tremendous power, some of the hits falling in safe places and others being gathered up in magnificient style by the infeliers. But in the fourth inning Mathewson met his Waterloo; it mattered not whether he pitched on a straight fast ball, a curve, a drop or a fade-away, the Athletics hammered him with a viciousness that easily showed their supremacy with the bat.

Came In Bunches.

Three men in a row, Frank Baker, Dan Murphy and Harry Davis, lined out corking two-baggers. These crashing drives, coupled with an out and a sacrifice, yielded three runs, and proved an advantage that the Giants never overcame. Again in the fifth inning the terrible Baker walloped another double, and Collins, who had singled a moment before, ran all the way to the plate with the fourth run.

In the seven innings that he occupied the box Mathewson was hit 10 times, six of the drives being for two bases. Bender, on the other hand, was in superb form after the first inning, and with masterly support to help out of several tight places, he held the New Yorks in check to the end.

Wiltse pitched the eighth inning for the Giants and managed to wiggle out of a tight fix after some bungling in the field.

The Athletics are predicting a clean-up in Harlem today. Plank will pitch for them and the Giants undoubtedly will use Marquard. This game was the last game in which the players received a share of the money. The gate receipts amounted to $40,957; the players' share was $22,116.78; each club's share was $7,372.26, while the national commission's rakeoff was $4,095.70. The players' pool resulting from the four games amounts to $127,910.61; the winning team will divide 60 per cent of this sum, while the losers will take the balance.

The Purity Congress On Trail of Vice

Speakers Handle Social Evil Without Gloves.

Columbus, Oct. 25.—The social evil was handled without gloves by speakers at the sixth annual convention of the International Purity congress, who called a spade a spade and left no misunderstanding in the minds of their auditors as to their meaning.

Dr. Elizabeth Hamilton Muncie of Brooklyn, speaking on "Sensuality or Sexuality: Which?" declared that white slavery was evidence of a rotting civilization.

"Yearly," she declared, "60,000 white slaves die. Yearly that number of women are offered on the altar of sensuality. Man wallows in sensuality and then brings the product of his living to innocent wives and children. We should look after our male prostitutes just as well as our women."

Bishop John William Hamilton of the M. E. church of Boston spoke following Dr. Muncie. He advocated a national bureau for the safeguarding of the children of the country; the bureau to be permanent and the head of it to be one of the president's cabinet officers.

In speaking of divorce, Bishop Hamilton said: "The courts are making themselves bargain counters for domestic brothels. The only real cure for the divorce evil is in arousing public sentiment."

Whitlock Is Scored.

General Theodore Bingham, former police commissioner of New York, and Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo were unmercifully scored by John B. Hammond of Des Moines, Ia., whose subject was the Iowa red light injunction law. Denouncing them as traitors to their government for advocating segregation of tenderloin districts, he said that the only remedy for the resort evil was extermination.

George L. Sehon, superintendent of the Children's Home society of Louisville, who has saved over 4,000 illegitimate boys and girls, created a sensation when in his address on "Illegitimacy" he declared that "no woman today has a right to take up club work to the detriment of her children."

At the business session the federation changed its name from "The American Purity federation" to the "World Purity federation."

Governor and Mrs. Harmon entertained the visiting delegates with a reception at their East Broad street home.

JUST READY TO DROP.

When you are "just ready to drop," when you feel so weak that you can hardly drag yourself about—and because you have not slept well, you get up as tired-out next morning as when you went to bed, then you need help right away.

Miss Len Dumas writes from Malone, N. Y., saying: "I was in a badly run-down condition for several weeks but two bottles of Vinol put me on my feet again and made me strong and well. Vinol has done me more good than all the other medicine I ever took."

If the careworn, haggard men and women, the pale, sickly children and feeble old folks around here would follow Miss Dumas' example, they, too, would soon be able to say that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, had built them up and made them strong.

It is a wonderfully strengthening and invigorating body-builder, and we sell it under an iron-clad guarantee of satisfaction. You get your money back if Vinol does not help you. Blackmer and Tanquary.

Falls From Train Seriously Injured

Joe Zimmerman, assistant to C. S. Thomas, insurance agent of Wilmington, while returning to Wilmington from this city a few evenings ago, was seriously injured while attempting to alight from the B. & O. S. W. train while it was going at a rapid rate of speed. He was hurled into the ditch with such violence that his head and shoulders were cut, bruised and he was otherwise injured.

It required some time to dress his wounds, and he will be laid up for several days. The accident happened at the Main street crossing in Wilmington.

SINGLE TAX AND "BIG BUSINESS"

Herbert Bigelow Requested to Answer Questions.

By ALLEN RIPLEY FOOTE, President of Ohio State Board of Commerce.

Mr. Herbert S. Bigelow, the Scripps-McRae league of newspapers, and all of their following of self-called "Progressives" are making an astonishing effort to impose upon the intelligence and credulity of the people of this state by proclaiming with impassioned oratory and scare headlines:

"The Ohio state board of commerce is in this fight to remove all taxation safeguards from the Ohio constitution. They want the legislature to be given free scope in classifying property for taxation. What is their object? To have stocks and bonds and holdings of corporations taxed at a lower rate than the home of the working man. Under such a plan it would be possible for Big Business to relieve itself of almost all tax burdens and shift them to the backs of the people."

Mr. Bigelow made this statement in an address before a meeting of the United Constitution Committee of Franklin county in Columbus Tuesday evening, August 21, 1911.

"Are you a single-taxer?" asked some one in the audience.

"Yes," answered Mr. Bigelow, "but I'll not try to enforce my views on the people unless a majority of them want it. When we have the initiative and referendum then we'll preach the single tax idea and not be ashamed of it."

I now ask Mr. Bigelow to answer the following questions for the information of the people of this state:

(1) Is it the object of the single-taxers to have stocks and bonds and holdings of corporations, and all property excepting land, however owned, exempted from taxation?

(2) If all property excepting land is not exempted from taxation, how can the theory of the single tax be given practical application?

(3) When the law provides for one tax only, a single tax on land values, will not "Big Business" be relieved from all tax burdens excepting the single tax on the land it may own?

(4) Can you give any logical reason why the adoption of the single tax will not benefit "Big Business?"

The direct practical bearing of these questions upon the intelligence and sincerity of Mr. Bigelow's views is obvious.

The Literature Department of the Browning club, Mrs. Maggie Hopkins chairman, presented an attractive program to the Browning club women Tuesday evening.

Miss Alice Perdue had an interesting paper on "Robert Burns" the Scotch poet.

Mrs. Hugh Hardin Hudson, of Gordonsville, Va., delighted the guests with her singing of the Scotch ballads, "The Braes of Ballochmyle," "Bonny Doon" and "Comin' Thro the Rye".

An enjoyable prelude to the regular session was a resume of the State Federation meeting entertainingly given by Mrs. F. G. Carpenter who attended as delegate from the Browning club.

Mrs. Carpenter has kindly promised the club women the full benefit of the convention, giving it to them in installments at the weekly meetings.

Ohio has the largest number of clubs, reporting 1500 members and 438 clubs.

The humanitarian interests are receiving more and more attention. Working women's clubs, setting apart of play grounds, welfare work for women and girls, loan funds furnished by clubs to aid poor girls are among the early movements working out for practical benefit.

Come And See Us.FRANK L. STUTSON*IN SOCIAL CIRCLES

The marriage of Mr. Roy Robert Reeves, of Columbus, son of Mrs. George F. Robinson of this city; and Miss Helen Evans Gest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Gest, was beautifully solemnized at the home of the bride at eight o'clock Tuesday evening.

With all the evidences of florist, musician and caterer, and its lavish appointments, the ascendant charm of the wedding was its effective simplicity.

It was distinctively a home wedding. The bride, a perfect picture of girlish loveliness, in her bridal robes, attended by the handsome young bridegroom, received the guests with the utmost informality as they arrived, and when the clock struck 8 quietly took their places before the officiating minister.

The strains of the harp floated softly through the rooms as the guests hushed to silence and with deep impressiveness. Rev. William Irwin Campbell, of the Presbyterian church, performed the ring ceremony.

The bride wore an exquisite Greek gown of white silk crepe trimmed in antique maline and fringe, with a touch of silver, and Greek fillet cap of antique maline and silver instead of the customary bridal veil. Her only ornament was a beautiful amethyst and pearl brooch, the gift of the bridegroom.

She carried a magnificent shower bouquet of bride's roses, lillies of the valley and fern, its trailing sprays falling to the bottom of her long train.

Fifty guests, largely the young friends of the bride and bridegroom, witnessed the ceremony.

Immediately after nuptial blessing the young couple led the way to the dining room, for the wedding supper.

Throughout the house the decorations showed the artistic skill of Mrs. Buck, florist.

In the reception hall and parlor were great shaggy pink chrysanthemums, pink roses, smilax and fern.

The bridal table was exquisite having for its centerpiece a basket of golden gate, ivory roses and smilax, in wonderfully graceful shower effect. The shower was caught to the table with smaller baskets of roses and smilax and gauze bows, and heavy ropes of smilax and roses lay on the table. Above the electric lights were garlanded in green.

Mrs. Louise Potter found the ring in the cake, Miss Levon Cockerill the dime, Mr. Jess Millikan the heart and Mr. Harold Inskeep the thimble. Miss Janet Stutson caught the bride's bouquet.

Throughout the evening Bonelli, the Columbus harpist, played beautifully. Eastman catered.

The wedding gifts, including an array of silver, cut glass and bric-a-brac were very handsome and made a brilliant ensemble.

Mr. and Mrs. Reeves left on the 10:35 train for Columbus.

After November the 15th they will be at home in the Bryden apartments, Bryden Road and Linwood avenue.

Mr. Reeves has been associated with the F. L. Packard, architects, of Columbus, since graduating from Carnegie Technical Institute. He is considered an unusually talented fellow, with brilliant prospects in his chosen profession of architecture.

A girl of rare beauty, yet unspoiled and lovable, the bride has been greatly admired in Washington's circles and her departure to a new home is genuinely regretted, especially in the younger set.

Her going away gown was a tailored suit of navy blue serge, with black velour hat and green feather band.

There were a number of very handsome gowns at the wedding.

Mrs. Gest received in lavender poplin, with chiffon velvet and lace trimmings. Miss Gest in black chiffon, embroidered in gold and chenille.

Mrs. Robinson, mother of the bridegroom, wore an elegant gown of Kings blue satin, veiled in black chiffon, embroidered in gold and chenille.

Assisting in the reception hospitalities were Mrs. Louise Stutson Potter, in white satin, draped with gold beaded net and trimmed in Duchess lace and brown maribou, and Miss Jean Glascock, in pale green messaline and chiffon.

The guests from out of town included Miss Belle Gest, of Urbana; Miss Louise Miller, of Xenia; Mrs. Will Pogue, Mrs. Frank Hubbell, Mrs. Dan Steel, of Xenia; Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Lacey, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Capt. of Wilmington; Mr. Jack Chandler, Mr. Ralph Snider, Miss Ella Corbett of Columbus; Mrs. John Zollinger, of Piqua; Judge J. L. Zimmerman, of St. Louis, Mo.

Famous Original Georgia Minstrel Born Here

HAS WARM SPOT FOR "HOME"

Expects to Visit Here Again
Before He Dies--Has Only
One Relative Living
Here Now.

"Long" Sam Lucas. Yes, that is his name, and a name that is familiar all over America, but more familiar in Washington than anywhere else on earth, for Washington C. H. is the place which "Long Sam Lucas" once called home.

This man, the greatest artist of negro minstrelsy, was born in this city, but has not been back to his native city for some six years, at which time he appeared at the old opera house with a party of minstrels, and played to a packed house.

Long Sam Lucas, funny man, poet and song writer. This in brief tells the story of Sam's remarkable career since he first saw the light of day in this city 65 years ago. He left here when he was still a young man, and the only living relative he has here, we are informed, is Clarence (Jerry) Powell, a half brother.

Long Sam Lucas received his name from his extreme height and slight build. By this name he is known all over the United States. He has been pronounced the greatest colored minstrel in America, and the most popular negro song writer. Among some of the best known songs he has written, and which are familiar to everyone, are: "My Grandfather's Clock", "Carve Dat Possum", "Every Day Will be Sunday By and

By", and a score of other popular and catchy songs.

The Sunday New York Sun gives almost a page write up to Lucas, together with two large pictures of the famous song writer and minstrel, and mentions the fact that Washington is his birthplace and how he was received in this city upon his return here to play.

During his childhood here, Lucas attracted great attention because of his irresistible desire to smile. He went through the world smiling, and the smile was so "fetching" that he simply smiled himself into the hearts of thousands of audiences. As a boy he was full of mischief, and gained much notoriety for his shrewdness. He was petted by both blacks and whites, and when he left this city and went to St. Louis to work in a barber shop, he could not stay in the shop because of his smile and laugh. So he joined Callender's Georgia minstrels, and his stage career commenced.

Lucas is now comfortably located in a home in New York City, but says he still has a very warm spot in his heart for Washington. Lucas is the man who won the praise of Harriet Beecher Stowe as he was the first colored man to play "Uncle Tom".

Lucas wants to visit Washington again before he dies, and it is safe to say that he will be made welcome when he comes here.

JOHN R. WALSH.

Living only nine days after his parole was granted by the government and his release from the Federal prison at Leavenworth, John R. Walsh, the Chicago capitalist and former head of The Chicago National bank, died at his home Monday.

There is, after all is said and done, something pathetic and appealing to the better side of men in the life and career of this man.

Broken in health and influence, at the age of 74, members of his family attribute the immediate cause of his death to the delay of the federal officials in releasing him from the big prison.

John R. Walsh deserved his punishment, even though the infliction of that punishment may have been the cause of his death, many will say.

Possibly that is true. Weighed by the human scales and applying human laws we may admit that probably that view is correct.

But there is a higher court before which John R. Walsh has now appealed his case which may take into consideration facts and circumstances covering a much longer period of that eventful life which the courts of this earth could not consider in judging specific incidents in that career.

His life story is an unusual one, and one which is becoming, each day, more and more improbable in this country.

Born in poverty he made his way as a newsboy by hard knocks. Deprived of the refining influences in early life his strong nature soon grew to know no law except the law of might. Compelled to battle with the world unaided he knew nothing of the more tender side. Thrown early into the company of those who depended absolutely on their own cunning and their own strength to carry them through and few or none in early life who respected his right unless his might compelled them to do so, it is not strange that "the survival of the fittest" became with him so firmly implanted that unconsciously it ruled the latter years of his life.

John R. Walsh by his illegal speculations and the disasters which followed, caused many innocent people to suffer, but in doing so he also brought happiness to thousands and enriched thousands who had been poor before his projects were executed.

He opened up new territory, carried the markets to many isolated communities and in these and many other ways benefited humanity.

Whether, taken as a whole, the good he accomplished equaled or exceeded the wrong he had done man's courts with their limited jurisdiction could not determine and could not even consider.

Perhaps the court of wider jurisdiction may weight all in the balance and return a different verdict.

At any rate there is something which compels the charitable to hope so even if their reason will not permit them to believe it to be true.

Men's measurements fall frequently far short of meting out justice in cases such as the People vs. John R. Walsh and let us permit that something which is a part of our make-up and which we, for want of a better name, call mercy, to think that the judgment of the lower courts in the case against John R. Walsh may be materially modified if it is not wholly set aside and expunged.

According to our code he was guilty of a crime which should be punished by imprisonment—the courts have so decided—but some times our courts fall short because of the limit of their jurisdiction.

A remarkably long span from ragged newsboy to great capitalist, but John R. Walsh crossed it and in doing so he proved himself to be an extraordinarily strong man.

As Finis is written to that life may we not all be charitable enough to hope that perhaps he will receive more merciful treatment "Up Yonder."

Musical Standards Have Been Elevated

By F. L. MICHAELSON
Birmingham, Ala.

Musical standards in this country have been greatly raised during the past few years. I have been reading with interest discussions about the educational requirements of those who study music seriously. I still consider myself a young man, but I have observed educational conditions in Europe and America long enough to have some definite ideas regarding cultural progress on this side of the Atlantic. The old world, of course, has had the advantage of centuries of art development. In this country, comparatively new, little attention seems to have been paid to art until about 35 or 40 years ago. In music there has been rapid progress in the past 10 or 15 years. I can remember when anyone who could play a little or sing a little was called a musician. Now no one is recognized as much of a musician unless he or she has a good deal of gray matter, has studied the theory of music and has a solid literary education as well. I speak especially of recent musical standards in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and other great cities.

It will not be many years before every music teacher in the country will be thoroughly equipped from a pedagogic point of view, and will insist on the pupils studying with a purpose of enlarging their mental horizon.

Poetry-Today

BIG EVENT.

A hush of expectancy hangs o'er the house.
Each tenant is holding his breath;
Each child has been told to be still as a mouse—
Is there fear of the presence of death?
Nay; down in the basement, with clatter and din,
And growls that flow forth in a stream,
Runs a man back and forth 'twixt the boiler and bin—
'Tis the janitor getting up steam!

Long besought by his charges to turn on the heat,
Their quavering pleas has he met with a frown, and these words (some one can not repeat),

"Go on! It ain't cold enough yet!"
But he, too, at last, has felt autumn's chill.

Waked up from his midsummer dream:
Now he bends all his energy, muscle and will
To the business of getting up steam.

The lawn is neglected; the halls are unswept,
And trash boxes litter the stair;
The windows unwashed and the whole place unkept.
The janitor's down in his lair.
None dares to play critic, to chide or upbraid,
None draws near his nether abode; He is getting up steam, and all hands are afraid

That a light word would make him explode!

YOUR GRAY HAIRSQUICKLY VANISH

A Harmless Remedy, Made from Garden Sage, Restores Color to Gray Hair.

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hairs, which, unfortunately, are looked upon as heralds of advancing age. Gray hairs, however, are not always an indication of advancing age, for many people have gray hairs quite early in life. Of course, it is unnatural, and indicates that there is something wrong with the individual and that Nature needs assistance in correcting the trouble. The same is true of hair that is constantly falling out and becoming thinner every day. If everything is right with Nature, the hair, even in comparatively elderly people, should be long, thick and glossy, without even a streak of gray.

The ideal assistant to Nature in restoring and preserving the hair is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a clean and wholesome dressing for daily use. It not only removes dandruff, but strengthens weak, thin and falling hair and promotes its growth. A few applications will restore faded or gray hair to its natural color.

Get a bottle today, and let it do for you what it has done for thousands of others.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special agent, Brown's Drug store.

Q.—Will the Apostle Peter be the doorkeeper in heaven, since Jesus said to him, "I will give unto you the keys of the kingdom of heaven?" (Matthew xvi, 19.)

Answer.—The "Kingdom" in this Scripture represents those who become true followers of Jesus. "Keys" are a symbol of power to open. To the Apostle Peter was delegated the privilege and authority of first opening the message and work of the Gospel to the Jews, and later to the Gentiles. He did the opening work of the New Dispensation, first to the Jews at Pentecost, at which time as we read, "Peter stood up with the eleven"; he took the initiative, he opened the Gospel invitation to the Jews and the other Apostles followed him. There he used one key. More than three years later he used the other key to open the message of the Kingdom of heaven to the Gentiles when the Lord sent him to preach the Gospel to Cornelius who was the first Gentile to accept the Lord Jesus Christ; therefore the first to become a member of the Kingdom of heaven class. Thus we see that the Apostle Peter long ago used the keys referred to in this Scripture. There will be no occasion ever to use them again. Those who reach heaven will not pass through literal doors.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Elam Harnish, known through Alaska as "Burning Daylight," celebrates his 30th birthday with a friendly crew of miners at the Circle City Hotel. He is a general favorite, a hero and a pioneer in the new gold fields. The dance leads to heavy gambling in which over $100,000 is staked. Harnish loses his money and his mine, but wins the mail contract of the district.

CHAPTER II.—Burning Daylight starts on his trip to deliver the mail with dogs and sledge. He tells his friends that the big Yukon gold strike will soon be on and he intends to be in it at the start. With Indian attendants and dogs he dips over the bank and down the frozen Yukon and in the gray light is gone.

CHAPTER III.—Harnish makes a sensational rapid run across country with the mail, appears at the hotel and there is another characteristic celebration. He has made a record against cold and exhaustion and is now ready to join his friends in a dash to the new gold fields.

CHAPTER IV.—Harnish decides where the gold will be found in the up-river district and buys two tons of flour, which he declares will be worth its weight in gold before the season is over.

CHAPTER V.—When Daylight arrives with his heavy outfit of flour he finds the big gold strike. His comrade die covers gold and Harnish reaps a rich harvest. He goes to Dawson, begins investing in corner lots and staking other miners and becomes the most prominent figure in the Klondike.

Followed wars, truces, compromises, victories, and defeats. By 1898, sixty thousand men were on the Klondike, and all their fortunes and affairs rocked back and forth and were affected by the battles Daylight fought. And more and more the taste for the larger game urged in Daylight's mouth. Here he was already locked in grapples with the great Guggenhammers, and winning, fiercely winning. Possibly the severest struggle was waged on Ophir, the veriest of moose-pastures, whose low-grade dirt was valuable only because of its vastness. The ownership of a block of seven claims in the heart of it gave Daylight his grip, and they could not come to terms. The Guggenhammer experts concluded that it was too big for him to handle, and when they gave him an ultimatum to that effect he accepted and bought them out. The plan was his own, but he sent down to the States for competent engineers to carry it out. In the Rinkabilly watershed, eighty miles away, he built his reservoir, and for eighty miles the huge wooden conduit carried the water across country to Ophir. Estimated at three millions, the reservoir and conduit cost nearer four. Nor did he stop with this. Electric power plants were installed, and his workings were lighted as well as run by electricity. Other sourdoughs, who had struck it rich in excess of all their dreams, shook their heads gloomily, warned him that he would go broke, and declined to invest in so ex-

Through It All Moved Daylight, Hell-Roaring, Burning Daylight.

Vagabond a venture. But Daylight smiled, and sold out the remainder of his town-site holdings. He sold at the right time, at the height of the placer boom. When he prophesied to his old cronies, in the Moosehorn Saloon, that within five years town lots in Dawson could not be given away, while the cabins would be chopped up for firewood, he was laughed at roundly, and assured that the mother-lode would be found ere that time. But he went ahead, when his need for lumber was finished, selling out his sawmills as well. Likewise, he began to get rid of his scattered holdings on the various creeks, and without thanks to any one he finished his conduit, built his dredges, imported his machinery, and made the gold of Ophir immediately accessible. And he, who five years before had crossed over the divide from Indian River and threaded the silent wilderness, his dogs packing Indian fashion, himself living Indian fashion on straight moose meat, now heard the hoarse whistles calling his hundreds of laborers to work, and watched them toll under the white glare of the arc-lamps.

But having done the thing, he was ready to depart. And when he let the word go out, the Guggenhammers fled with the English concerns and with a new French company in bidding for Ophir and all its plant. The Guggenhammers bid highest, and the price they paid netted Daylight a clean million. It was current rumor that he was worth anywhere from twenty to thirty millions. But he alone knew just how he stood, and that, with his last claim sold and the table swept clean of his winnings, he had ridden his hunch to the tune of just a trifling over eleven millions.

His departure was a thing that passed into the history of the Yukon along with his other deeds. All the Yukon was his guest, Dawson the seat of the festivity. On that one last night no man's dust save his own was good. Drinks were not to be purchased. Every saloon ran open, with extra relays of exhausted bartenders, and the drinks were given away. A man who refused this hospitality, and persisted in paying, found a dozen fights on his hands. The veriest cheaque rose up to defend the name of Daylight from such insult. And through it all, on moccasined feet, moved Daylight, hell-roaring, Burning Daylight, overspilling with good nature and camaraderie, howling his bear-wolf howl and claiming the night as his, bending men's arms down on the bars, performing feats of strength, his bronzed face flushed with drink, his black eyes flashing, clad in overalls and blanket coat, his ear-flaps dangling and his gauntleted mittens swinging from the cord across the shoulders. But this time it was neither an asante nor a stake that he threw away, but a mere marker in the game that he held so many markers would not miss.

CHAPTER VII.

In no blaze of glory did Burning Daylight descend upon San Francisco. Not only had he been forgotten, but the Klondike along with him. The world was interested in other things, and the Alaskan adventure, like the Spanish War, was an old story. He settled down in St. Francis Hotel, was interviewed by the cub-reporters on the hotel-run, and received brief paragraphs of notice for twenty-four hours.

Several months passed in San Francisco, during which time he studied the game and its rules, and prepared himself to take a hand.

Tiring of being merely an onlooker, he ran up to Nevada, where the new gold-mining boom was fairly started—"just to try a flutter," as he phrased it to himself. The flutter on the Tonopah Stock Exchange lasted just ten days, during which time his smashing, wild-bull game played ducks and drakes with the more stereotyped gamblers, and at the end of which time, having gambled Floridell into his fist, he let go for a net profit of half a million. Whereupon, smacking his lips, he departed for San Francisco and the St. Francis Hotel. It tasted good, and his hunger for the game became more acute.

And once more the papers sensationalized him. BURNING DAYLIGHT was a big-letter headline again. Interviewers flocked about him. Old files of magazines and newspapers were searched through, and the romantic and historic Elam Harnish, Adventurer of the Frost, King of the Klondike, and Father of the Sourdoughs, strode upon the breakfast table of a million homes along with the toast and breakfast foods. Even before his elected time, he was forcibly launched into the game. Financiers and promoters, and all the flotsam and jetsam of the sea of speculation surged upon the shores of his eleven millions. In self-defence he was compelled to open offices. He dabbled in little things at first—"stalling for time," as he explained it to Holdsworth, a friend he had made at the Alta-Pacific Club. Daylight himself was a member of the club, and Holdsworth had proposed him. And it was well that Daylight played closely at first, for he was astounded by the multitudes of sharks—"ground-sharks," he called them—that flocked about him. He saw through their schemes readily enough, and even marveled that such numbers of them could find sufficient prey to keep them going. Their rascality and general dubiousness was so transparent that he could not understand how any one could be taken in by them.

So it was that he resolved to leave the little men, the Holdsworths, alone; and, while he met them in good fellowship, he chummed with none, and formed no deep friendships. He did not dislike the little men, the men of the Alta-Pacific, for instance. He merely did not elect to choose them for partners in the big game in which he intended to play. What this big game was, even he did not know. He was waiting to find it. And in the meantime he played small hands, investing in several arid-lands reclamation projects and keeping his eyes open for the big chance when it should come along.

And then he met John Dowsett, the great John Dowsett. It was the first big magnate Daylight had met face to face, and he was pleased and charmed. There was such kindly humanness about the man, such a genial democraticness, that Daylight found it hard to realize that this was the John Dowsett, president of a string of banks, insurance manipulator, reputed ally of the lieutenants of Standard Oil, and known ally of the Guggenhammers. Nor did his looks belie his reputation and his manner. Physically, he guaranteed all that Daylight knew of him. Despite his sixty years and snow-white hair, his hand-shake was firmly hearty, and he showed no signs of decrepitude, walking with a quick, snappy step, making all movements definitely and decisively.

It was not long afterward that Daylight came on to New York. A letter from John Dowsett had been the cause—a simple little typewritten letter of several lines. But Daylight had thrilled as he read it. The bald sentences seemed gorged with mystery. "Our Mr. Howison will call upon you at your hotel. He is to be trusted. We must not be seen together. You will understand after we have had our talk." Daylight conned the words over and over. That was it. The big game had arrived, and it looked as if he were being invited to sit in and take a hand. Surely, for no other reason would one man so peremptorily invite another man to make a journey across the continent.

They met—thanks to "our" Mr. Howison—up the Hudson, in a magnificently appointed country home. Daylight, according to instructions, arrived in a private motor car which had been furnished him. Dowsett was already there, and another man whom Daylight recognized before the introduction was begun. It was Nathaniel Letton, and none other. Daylight had seen his face a score of times in the magazines and newspapers, and read about his standing in the financial world, and about his endowed University of 'legitimate and right, and the only ones who may be hurt are the stock gamblers themselves. It is not an attempt to smash the market. As you see yourself, you are to pull the market. The honest investor will be the gainer."

"Yes, that's the very thing," Dowsett said. "The commercial need for copper is continually increasing. Ward Valley Copper, and all that it stands for—practically one-quarter of the world's supply, as I have shown you—is a big thing, how big, even we can scarcely estimate. Our arrangements are made. We have plenty of capital ourselves, and yet we want more. Also, there is too much Ward Valley out to suit our present plans. Thus we kill both birds with one stone. Not only will you pull Ward Valley, but you will at the same time gather Ward Valley in. This will be of inestimable advantage to us, while you and all of us will profit by it as well. And as Mr. Letton has pointed out, the thing is legitimate and square. On the eighteenth the directors meet, and, instead of the customary dividend, a double dividend will be declared."

"There will be all sorts of rumors on the street," Dowsett warned Daylight, "but do not let them frighten you. These rumors may even originate with us. You can see how and why clearly. But rumors are to be no concern of yours. You are on the inside. All you have to do is buy, buy, buy, and keep on buying to the last stroke, when the directors declare the double dividend. Ward Valley will jump so that it won't be feasible to buy after that."

"And one other thing, Mr. Harnish," Guggenhammer said, "if you exceed your available cash, or the amount you care to invest in the venture, don't fail immediately to call on us. Remember, we are behind you."

"Yes, we are behind you," Dowsett repeated.

Nathaniel Letton nodded his head in affirmation.

of Constitutional Convention Issues.

Columbus, O.—(Special)—Allen R. Foote, president of the Ohio State Board of Commerce, makes public a letter addressed to editors of Scripps-McRae newspapers in Ohio in which he resents attacks made upon his organization.

President Foote says he asked the Scripps-McRae papers to publish his communication either as news or as advertising at regular rates, which they have refused to do.

The Scripps-McRae papers in Ohio are the Akron Press, Cincinnati Post, the Cleveland Press, the Toledo News-Bee and the Columbus Citizen, all of which received a copy of this letter.

To the Editor:

The Ohio State Board of Commerce, its constitutional educational committee and its individual members have been subjected to criticism and abuse by the papers of the Scripps-McRae league.

We have been patiently awaiting the wind-up of the false statements about the board and its work, believing that sooner or later even your bright imaginations would run out of material for the fabrications you have been retailing in the guise of facts.

The constitution educational committee of the Ohio State Board of Commerce has been assailed because it is making an effort to give to the people of Ohio discussions on both sides of the big questions that will enter into the work of the coming constitutional convention. The assaults of the Scripps-McRae newspapers have been particularly vicious because this committee has seen fit to discuss the initiative, the referendum and the recall on their merits.

You pretend to advocate these three principles of government, but as a matter of fact advocacy has been altogether an attack upon the work of the Ohio State Board of Commerce. You take particular pleasure in charging that "big business," the "interests" and "special interests" are mas-

That more than one person in this city has become addicted to the "lemon extract habit" is testified by the large number of lemon extract bottles—empties of course—which are picked up in the basement of the court house and other places frequented by the general public.

Whether this "dope" is swallowed without being diluted, or is added to cider, is not known. However it is known that lemon extract is a dangerous compound for anyone to use as a beverage.

This queer substitute for liquor is probably used by persons who have been addicted to the liquor habit for years.

FORWARD PASS STAYS

This Play Expected to Be of Great Importance.

For Those Teams Which Have no Field Goal Men the Tossing Becomes More and More Essential—Rule Changes.

Forward passing is likely to be even more important in football games this year than ever before, according to many critics, and will be the mainstay of a great many teams. Those squads which have field goal kickers of more than usual ability will be able to husband their forward pass plays against weaker opponents, relying upon the ability of their kickers to give them victories. For those which have no field goal men, however, the tossing becomes more and more important, and the coaches who have these teams will have their work cut out for them in constantly developing plays with which to mystify their opponents.

Only one important rule has been made since last season, and this was made with a view of rendering the forward pass a more practicable play. Under last year's rules, the forward pass had to be made from a point at least five yards back of the line of scrimmage, and if uncompleted was brought back to the point from which the pass was made, the uncompleted pass counted a down.

Under the revised rule instead of taking the ball back to the place from which the pass was made the oval is brought back to the place of the previous down. As the rule specifically requires at least five yards back of the line of scrimmage and as the point from which the pass was made last year averaged at least ten yards back of the line, it will be seen that in framing the new rule the framers of the code removed a great ground loss penalty.

It was expected last season that the restrictions on the length of the forward pass would result in making the play a short lob instead of a long overhead throw, but this was proved to be wrong, for the one variety of pass was used with as much execution as the other.

The code declares the ball shall be considered dead when it passes a line 20 yards in advance of the line of scrimmage, but as the pass is usually made from a point at least eight yards back of the line of scrimmage the total forward progress of the ball is from 28 to 30 yards, and even with a more generous rule it is doubtful if tosses of more than this distance would be attempted.

In the great majority of cases long passes are shot out toward the ends further than directly over the line, and it is seldom a pass is caught more than ten yards beyond the line.

Both the long and short pass have their good features to recommend them to coaches, and it is difficult to decide which is the preferable. Neither would be of any use were they not run in a deceptive manner, depending for their effectiveness upon their unexpectedness. It is a poor team that could not stop a forward pass when one is expected, for where there are six men of the offensive team eligible to receive the pass there are 11 on the defense. In addition to this, the offensive man first touching the ball must recover it, while if a ball is touched by an offensive player all 11 of the defending side are thereby made eligible to scramble for it.

Ministers and Laymen Are United in Cause

Work Harmoniously for Great Religious Revival.

BIG MEETING AT COLUMBUS

Fred B. Smith, National Campaign Leader, and Other Men Prominent in "Men and Religion Movement" Will Be Present to Explain Objects of Organization—Hope to Settle Economic Problems by Application of Christ's Teachings.

The North American continent is now the scene of a movement of men for religious purposes of a most unusual sort. The "Brotherhoods" of ten denominations, the International Sunday School Association, and the International Y. M. C. A. have joined hands in a plan of work, modern in type, wide in scope and embracing much work not always classed as religious. This movement is known as "The Men and Religion Forward Movement." It is not a ministers' movement nor is it a laymen's movement, but it is a movement of both. Both ministers and men of the pew unite, without special distinction or thought of difference, to bring about a big moral, social and religious advance.

An editorial recently in the Indianapolis Sun says:

"In speaking of the Men and Religion Forward Movement we have already expressed the hope and belief that it will succeed, because it seeks to make religion practical instead of theoretical. It is a movement, in short, to make the teachings of Christ applicable to the everyday problems of this day—problems that are moral and religious by right, but which have been shovelled off upon the shoulders of secular organizations to solve—or else have gone unsolved by default."

Copyright by Harris & Ewing.

FRED B. SMITH.

The Social Service department of "The Men and Religion Forward Movement" is here referred to, but the other lines are those of Boys' Work, Evangelism, Bible Study, and Missions. The plan is to arouse, train and enlist the men and older boys of the American churches along all of these lines, giving each man and boy some definite work to do and teaching him how to do it well.

Mr. Fred B. Smith the national campaign leader, is the world's greatest evangelist to men and a man of unusual power. The Y. M. C. A. has given him to the new movement. Other men, specialists in various lines, will help. Rev. Charles Stelzel, Rev. Isaac J. Lansing and others in Social Service; W. C. Pearce, F. S. Goodman in Bible study, and a long list of leaders in the departments of work mentioned.

Columbus, O., is one of seventy-six centers of work for this season, and an eight-day campaign covering all the five lines of effort will be conducted Nov. 13-20. A team of the national experts will be present, together with Fred B. Smith and the International Male Quartet. Columbus has organized a Committee of One Hundred and in the twenty-eight counties of the Columbus district many towns have already organized co-operating movements and will send delegates to the convention of Christian men interested in Men and Religion. Two days of the Columbus campaign, Nov. 14-15, will be convention days, and all of the national experts present will be heard. The presence of J. A. Whitmore, Isaac J. Lansing, W. R. Lane of London, England; W. C. Pearce and Charles R. Drum will make it a great occasion.

Pastors of all churches and any man interested can learn of the movement through Mr. L. B. Bradrich of Columbus, who is Executive Secretary. Rev. Herbert Scott is chairman of the Columbus committee.

Many men who have not been conspicuous in religious work before and magazines of worldwide circulation and daily papers are giving already an unusual amount of attention to the Movement because it is a new emphasis on vital and practical Christianity. It is new in method and yet retains the old fine spirit of devotion, which it translates into terms of present-day need and life.

SELFISH INTERESTS TRYING TO GET CONTROL OF CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

(Marion Star.)

Each passing day seems to make more certain that when the new constitution is finally submitted to the electors for ratification the people will decide that it is better to "bear those ills we have than fly to others that we know not of." In these days of unrest and vague dissatisfaction with conditions as they are, so many quack doctors and remedies for the ills of the body politic have been advanced that there is little hope that the patient will be permitted to get well naturally. In more reasoning times, it would be possible to entrust our best men with the task of taking all the suggestions made, winnowing out the ideas and reforms that are practicable and needed and putting them into enforceable terms.

But all over the state small bodies of men with selfish purpose or impractical dreamers have been resolving themselves into little constitutional conventions, presenting their fads for one-sided discussion; compromising on matters in which they have no interest, and nominating candidates for the real constitutional convention tied hand and foot to certain preconceived ideas.

But the danger of electing these men does not lie entirely in the possibility of their engraving upon our organic law certain experiments, their devotion to which is the basis of their candidacy. The added danger is in the idea closest to their hearts which they are not bold enough to proclaim but which they hope to accomplish by indirection after laying the groundwork in the constitution.

As an illustration, the Rev. Herbert Bigelow is making a statewide campaign for the election of delegates to the convention. Although a minister of the gospel, he advocates the election of "wet" delegates in Cincinnati, not because he believes in the saloon, but solely because he holds that the real important change in the constitution needed is the adoption of the initiative and referendum and recall. And yet his purpose is beyond this. To him the initiative and referendum mean a step in the direction of "single tax" or "land tax" and the abolition of private ownership of the soil. This is his real political conviction, all others being merely subordinate to that. The Socialist goes a step further, and wants the initiative and referendum with a view to ultimately abolish all property rights except community rights. The saloonist is willing to accept license as an alternative to prohibition, but the majority of his class is opposed to any form of regulation; the antisaloon worker wants the initiative and referendum to bring about statewide prohibition.

It would seem that it would be well for the people who want a practical constitution, free from radicalism, a working plan under which the people can, in orderly course, provide a government which will protect life, health and property, promote peace and education, safeguard the morals and insure a reign of law and order, to draft men for this duty, whose ideas are not warped or fixed, whose hands are not tied, who are wise, honest, patriotic, and able to reason clearly and practically and act intelligently and with a view to the interest of all classes. That a candidate seeks to go to the convention because of views he holds, or has already expressed, is a good reason for sending some other to the work.

TRYING TO TRICK FARMERS

Newspapers all over the state are being offered a free newspaper plate service by the Progressive Constitutional League, managed by Herbert Bigelow of Cincinnati, to further the initiative and referendum principle in the coming constitution. Any newspaper accepting the same is helping an organized and financed movement by special interests of the very worst type. This special interest is a class of rich men who want to escape all taxation by forcing the tax on land. Ashtabula county farmers and home owners are wise to their game and will look askance at any local newspaper which accepts the service.

Herbert Bigelow is in the employ of Joseph Fels and is paid by him or by an organization founded by him to further the single tax theories through the cloak of the initiative and when the city and non-land owning voters will outnumber the land owning farmers and the home owners and it is through this direct vote scheme that the tricksters of the single tax hope to gain a victory. If they can get this I. & R. into the constitution they know the legislature cannot remove the obstruction it will place upon a free people. The I. & R., when applied to state-wide propositions, is a movement backward, a movement toward abject submission to the monetary power, such as has never been dreamed of—and yet the people who favor the proposition do so either ignorantly or through design to make themselves and their henchmen supreme and free of all taxation in Ohio.—Jefferson Gazette.
